CENTRE FOR URBAN NETWORK EVOLUTIONS
AARHUS UNIVERSITY

Call for papers:

Open Audition

21 January 2016

The Danish National Research Foundation's Centre of Excellence Centre for Urban Network Evolutions (UrbNet) hereby invites potential postdoctoral fellows to submit abstracts for papers to be given at the centre's "Open Audition" 21 January 2016. The "Open Audition" is a one-day event with short papers, discussion of research ideas and introduction to the centre's work and team. The centre is currently recruiting a number of junior and senior researchers. The event will give interested scholars the possibility of visiting the centre and showcasing their research projects and develop ideas together with researchers from the centre in order to explore possible collaborations.

We are looking to integrate projects into the centre's work that intersect firmly based humanities questions and problems concerning urban development and networks, but which do so through the integration of methods from natural sciences. Projects should understand the agendas of how to approach, examine and understand the phenomenon of urbanism in a new light by also letting humanities be informed by the rapidly developing techniques in the natural sciences. The centre's work focuses on the regions from Northern Europe over the Levant to the East Coast of Africa. It involves empirical material from a number of existing excavation projects, as well as material already excavated and concerns both theoretical and methodological issues.

Applications to participate in the event should consist of a CV and a research idea outline, as well as paper title and abstract relating to this that takes into consideration the ideas and concepts with which the centre works.
